FOUR CENTS

GEN. M'ARTHUR MISSED BY JAP SNIPERS

Meandering Along the Main Stem By WASH FAYETTE

Some of these times when they start grading the streets and alleys for Dutch Denton's new addition on the Old Fairgrounds, the graders will probably turn up hundreds of coins that were lost on the grounds during fair time away back yonder 60 to 75 years ago, and during circuses that have appeared there during the last half century.

There is just enough kid about me to want to go over the newly turned earth after it is graded and hunt for those old coins, not because of the face value of the coins, but just to obtain some of the unusual ones.

When I was a good sized boy one of my favorite pastimes was looking over newly plowed sites of the pioneer log cabins, which were invariably readily picked out by the difference in the color of the soil and fragments of broken dishes, as well as glacial stones that had been set in the ground for the corners of the log cabins to rest upon.

Time and again my search was rewarded by finding some of those huge, copper cent pieces of early coinage, which were green and corroded by the long years they had rested in the earth. They probably had been dropped through cracks in the puncheon floors of the log cabins and were never retrieved.

Some of those old one cent coins dated back to 1818, 1819 and in the 1820's and were in good condition. I still have them.

But I'll bet the grading on the old fairground will bring to light many old coins that would delight the heart of any collector, for a great deal of money changed hands there during the fairs and circuses.

Not in years have I seen so many cases of ivy poisoning as I have in the past few weeks, and some of the cases have been unusually severe.

In nearly every instance the ivy poisoning is due to the average person not being familiar with this very poisonous vine, which is found in every part of Fayette County where there are streams, woods, fence rows, or neglected spots.

It differs from the common woodbine, frequently mistaken for poison ivy, in the fact that woodbine is non-poisonous and that woodbine has five leaves to the stem, while the poison ivy has only three.

Drug stores and physicians have been called upon by scores of persons recently to supply cures for the irritating skin affliction caused by the poisonous vines.

SWISS LAWS HELP HIDE NAZI'S MONEY

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(P)—Senators delving into German plans for a third world war heard testimony today that Swiss banking secrecy laws provide the Nazis with a convenient cloak for their machinations.

Returned from a mission to Europe, Orvis Schmidt, director of the treasury's foreign funds control division, told a military subcommittee "the German industrial giants have honeycombed" the four neutral nations of Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland, as well as Argentina and Turkey with some 650 subsidiary and affiliated companies.

MAN DIES OF INJURIES RECEIVED IN 2 CRASHES

CHILLICOTHE, July 2.—(P)—George Graham, 27, of Columbus, died in a hospital here today of injuries received in two automobile accidents here Saturday night.

A police report said Graham's automobile struck a light pole on East Main Street and then when he drove away, overturned on a side street about a mile away.

COLLECTIVE TRIAL PLAN AGREEMENT IS SEEN SOON

LONDON, July 2.—(P)—A responsible informant said today the four major western powers had reached general agreement on the American plan for a collective trial of German war leaders before an international military tri-

OPA IS SAVED BY FAST PLANE FOR SIGNATURE

Byrnes Named Secretary of State - Military Training Issue Faces Showdown

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(P)—President Truman's signature to a bill flown to him in Kansas City brought OPA safely through a fiscal year-end crisis.

The measure extending price and stabilization controls one year was signed into law shortly before their Saturday midnight expiration.

BYRNES CONFIRMED
WASHINGTON, July 2.—(P)—James F. Byrnes was confirmed unanimously by the Senate today as secretary of state, succeeding Edward R. Stettinius, Jr.

Mr. Truman in a statement issued yesterday reiterated such controls will be needed during reconversion to continue the fight against inflation.

While granting Clinton P. Anderson, new secretary of agriculture, veto authority over food pricing orders, a joint Senate-House conference committee deleted sections that would have made Anderson a virtual food czar.

As passed, the price control ex-

REALISTIC DREAM!

Restless Sleeper Winds Up
With Head Caught in Bed

KANSAS CITY, July 2.—(P)—Joe Infield, 21, ice cream plant employee, awoke this morning to find his head caught in a five-inch space between bars of the footboard of his bed.

An hour later, he was freed—by the efforts of his wife, his mother-in-law, 10 neighbors and two policemen.

"I can't say just how I did it," Infield said, rubbing his neck. "He seemed to be having a nightmare," Mrs. Infield said.

"I reached out to shake him awake, and there were his feet up on the pillow and his head sticking through the bars."

Mrs. Infield called her mother, who rushed out for a hack saw and returned with 10 neighbors. The neighbors took turns at the saw, but after 30 minutes the bed rail had only a couple of scratches. Infield's neck was nicked a couple of times when the saw slipped.

Then two policemen applied a chisel to the bar and whammed away with a heavy hammer. The bar broke.

Joe was unable to move. His wife had to pull him out.

Germany To Be Broken Under New Allied Plan

PARIS, July 2.—(P)—Plans looking toward the complete decentralization of Germany were mapped by the U. S. group of the Allied Control Council today as American occupation troops trekked toward Berlin preliminary to the Big Three meeting there this month.

Dispatches from Frankfurt said members of the U. S. control group also were moving to Berlin and within 10 days would be in a position to place their proposals before representatives of Russia, Britain and France.

The American program for decentralization of Germany—politically and economically—calls for breaking Germany down into a number of "lander," or militarily impotent, districts.

Work has begun on breaking up the United States western Reich district—one of two military areas

President Makes No Attempt To Go Into Details as He Says Simply: 'This Charter Points Down Only Road To Enduring Peace - - There Is No Other'

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(P)—President Truman presented the United Nations Charter in person to the Senate today and urged its "prompt ratification."

"The choice before the Senate is now clear," said the chief executive in a brief speech.

"The choice is not between this charter and something else. It is between this charter and no charter at all."

The Senate must ratify the United Nations Charter for world security to assure this nation's participation.

The president went to the Capitol less than 24 hours after his return from San Francisco where he addressed the closing session of the United Nations conference which drafted the blueprint for a lasting peace.

"This charter points down the only road to enduring peace," the president said. "There is no other. Let us not hesitate to join hands with the peace-loving peoples of the earth and start down that

Strike Spreading Among Workers in Rubber Factories

Firestone Workers Quit While Those from Goodyear Remain Out in Spite of Government Threats—Situation Daily Grows More Critical

AKRON, July 2.—(P)—Some 33,000 CIO-United Rubber Workers in the nation's tire building capital were idle today as pickets patrolled plants of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. and employees of five Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. divisions continued their 16-day-old stoppage.

Goodyear employees yesterday voted for the seventh time to continue their strike, despite a War Labor Board threat to rescind their union contract rights and reclassification of the men by draft officials.

The Firestone workers struck yesterday after an estimated 1,500 URW members voted two-to-one for a stoppage at a stormy three-hour meeting.

"We have been consorting with the politicians, now it is high time we stick together," I. S. Watson, president of the Firestone Local, told the meeting. "Goodyear Local has been carrying the burden for labor in America."

In a statement issued last night, Watson said, "the company advised us that they refuse to concede any ground on 36 points in dispute."

The Firestone president said many of these points were "of paramount importance" to the Woman, Three Year Old Girl

Detained by Police

DETROIT, July 2.—(P)—Mrs. Marie Rolver, 35, of Cincinnati, and three-year-old Suzanne Stradler were detained by police today at the request of Cincinnati authorities who reported the two missing Saturday.

Mrs. Rolver and the child were located at the city airport this morning by patrolman Arthur Schmidt who said the woman at first asserted the child was hers and later said she was the youngster's godmother.

Police said Mrs. Rolver's brother and Suzanne's father would come here from Cincinnati to return them to their homes.

Boy Held in Death OF 14 YEAR OLD

He Stabbed Him and Girl
Who Broke Date

CHICAGO, July 2.—(P)—A 17-year-old youth was held without charge in Bridewell Hospital today, a dagger wound in his abdomen, for questioning in the fatal stabbing of a 14-year-old boy and the wounding of a high school girl.

Detective Louis Agnus said John Taubery, 17, came to the station Sunday morning, told them, "I want to confess. I stabbed a girl," and collapsed.

The girl, Betty Albrecht, 15, was in County Hospital suffering from stab wounds in the left breast and back. Her right lung was pierced. The dead youth was Charles Dryden, brother of Mrs. Catherine Brudnicki, whose children Betty was caring for Saturday night.

Agnus said the girl said she had broken a date with Taubery to care for the children, and that Dryden stopped in at the apartment and was there when Taubery came in.

CIVILIAN GOODS IS TO INCREASE

Return to Stores Unlikely
Before Fall, However

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON, July 2.—(P)—The government slipped its reconversion program into high gear today. Consumers, however, must wait months—at least—before most long-missing household appliances return in quantity to stores.

The War Production Board released a "free" supply of metal for civilian goods, the amount depending on what is left over from war demands. It also began a gradual scrapping, over the next half-year, of its priority system for all but munitions items.

Electric and gas refrigerators, for instance, will not reach stores until September or October, and then probably as "demonstrator" models.

Housewives will be able to see the new machines and enroll their names on dealers' lists of buyers. However, many purchasers already have ordered sight unseen. This is the conclusion from an in-

THIRD INVASION OF BORNEO HITS AT BALIKPAPAN

Greatest Flood of Fire Ever
Unleashed by B-29s Sweeps
Four Cities of Japan

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
By the Associated Press

Japanese snipers tried again to get Douglas MacArthur when he joined Australian veterans yesterday in a third Borneo invasion. Front dispatches disclosed today nearly 600 fire-spilling Superfortresses struck the war's heaviest air blow against Japan and submarine claimed 11 more enemy ships.

A British submarine sank a 10,000 ton Japanese cruiser of the Haguro class in the southwest Pacific. American submarine bagged ten more—two small warcraft, six freighters and two tankers—running their wartime total to 1,163.

A record 4,000 tons of incendiaries scattered by B-29s set fire raging through four Japanese cities including Nippon's magnesium producing center and the Kure naval base.

General MacArthur personally directed the Sunday morning invasion of the Balikpapan oil area on southeastern Borneo. Enemy snipers spotted him when he visited the most advanced positions and sent a hail of bullets singing around him. Combat troops ducked. The general remained erect, and unharmed.

Five thousand Aussies, by Japanese estimate, made the Balikpapan landing after the most elaborate naval and aerial preparation of the war.

Assault waves swept over abandoned enemy beach defenses, through accurate fire and seized the last ridge before the blazing city of Balikpapan by midafternoon. The ridge was littered with enemy dead. Many Japanese were reported fleeing to the jungles.

The invasion, with previous landings off the northeast Borneo coast, and June 10 at Brunei Bay on the northeast shores, gave the Aussies a three-cornered grip on the island. General MacArthur, who landed four hours after the first assault wave, said the Allies had now secured domination of all Borneo and had virtually completed tactical control of the southwest Pacific. Brunei Bay and Balikpapan have good fleet anchorages from which the Allied forces can continue inroads into Japan's southern empire.

Elaborate invasion preparations paid off with light initial losses (Please Turn to Page Two)

JUNE PROVES TO BE NEARLY NORMAL MONTH

Rainfall Somewhat Short But Average Temperature Was Normal

June, with temperatures ranging all the way from 42 degrees on the 4th and 5th to 97 on the 29th proved to be nearly a normal month, although precipitation was a half inch short of normal.

Total rainfall was 3.98 inches compared with 4.48 normal, and the average temperature was 69.6 degrees while the normal is 69.5 for June.

The monthly summary, compiled by U. S. Weather Observer, Chalmers Burns, who has the government recording instruments on his premises on Leesburg Avenue, shows there were nine days when the mercury reached 90 or above, and that 16 days were classified as clear, 12 as partly cloudy and two as cloudy.

Winds were from the west most of the time, with a few days showing considerable variation in the direction from which they came.

The mean maximum temperature for the month was 82.6 degrees and the mean minimum was 56.7 degrees.

WATER PLANT VALUE SET AT CIRCLEVILLE

Company Expected To Fight Verdict of Jury

Reporting Monday the jury sitting in the case of the City of Circleville against the Ohio Water Service, Inc., fixed the valuation of the plant at $420,000, and at a meeting of the Circleville council Tuesday night decision will be made whether to proceed with closing the deal.

In the meantime the Water Company is expected to appeal the case to the higher courts, inasmuch as the company refused an offer of $450,000 tendered by the city a year or more ago.

Finding of the jury followed a lengthy hearing in which the water company and city both introduced testimony to guide the jury in arriving at a proper valuation of the plant.

Condemnation proceedings were filed by the city sometime ago and the present suit was the outcome.

Much local interest centers in the Circleville case by reason of steps now under way here with a view to buying the Ohio Water Service Company's plant here.

The measure all requires OPA to allow processors of beef, lamb and pork a reasonable profit on each of the three types of meat.

Military Training A tentative report recommending prompt congressional approval of the "broad principle" of universal military training is in the hands of House postwar military committee members.

Barring unexpected changes of sentiment, the report will be approved formally Thursday. Indications are that not more than six of the 23 committee will dissent.

The report declares "timely adoption" of the principle of peace time military training for the nation's youths "will provide assurance to the United Nations that this nation expects to retain the necessary military strength to stand behind and make to work the ideals which inspired the Dumbarton Oaks and the world security conferences.

It emphasizes that no military

Postmaster W. E. Passmore said Monday that sale of Federal use stamps for motor vehicles up to the closing hours Saturday evening, reached 2540 compared with 2499 for the same time last year.

He also said there was a pronounced rush for the tax stamps Monday on the part of those who had failed to obtain the stamps by July 1, as required by law.

Penalty of failing to display the stamps is $25 and costs.

The Fayette County Auto Club sold 1104 of the tax stamps to club members.

service should be required of youths put into training, except in a national emergency and upon express orders of Congress.

The training, the report continues, should be provided "in such a manner and on such a basis as to cause the least interference" with normal education and the private lives of the trainees.

Cabinet Appointment Expected Senate approval today of James F. Byrnes' nomination to be secretary of state will give President Truman five cabinet officers of his own choice.

Byrnes' long-rumored selection to succeed Edward B. Stettinius, Jr., was announced at Kansas City late Saturday shortly after the last of four previously-chosen new cabinet members had taken the oath of office here.

Byrnes left the supreme court bench at President Roosevelt's bidding in 1941 to become economic stabilizer and "assistant president."

Saturday's cabinet shifts brought these new faces into the presidential official family:

Clinton P. Anderson as secretary of agriculture, succeeding Claude Wickard.

Lewis B. Schwellenbach as secretary of labor, succeeding Frances Perkins.

Tom Clark as attorney general, moving up from assistant to Francis Biddle.

Robert E. Hannegan as postmaster general, succeeding Frank C. Walker.

In a radio address yesterday, the new food chief said his first task would be to create farmer confidence in future demand. He asserted government agencies should be required to guarantee payment for all the food they ask to be produced.

WORLD PEACE CHARTER PUT IN SENATE'S LAP BY PRESIDENT TRUMAN

road—with the firm resolve that we can and will reach our goal."

Mr. Truman reviewed the congressional background favoring an international peace organization—the Connally lasting peace resolution and the Fulbright resolution of the House which were adopted more than a year ago—and told the Senate the peoples of the earth will "watch our action here with great concern and high hope."

"For they looked to this body of elected representatives of the people of the United States to take the lead in approving the charter and statute and pointing the way for the rest of the world," he said.

The president made no attempt to go into the details of the charter, telling his former colleagues he was sure they are familiar with its proposed workings and that they will be thoroughly discussed in Senate debate.

Declaring the charter the product of many hands and influences, Mr. Truman said it comes from the "reality of experience in a world where one generation has failed twice to keep the peace. The lessons of that experience have been written into the document."

He urged the Senate to consider not only the words but the spirit of the document. Its objectives, he said, are clear:

"It seeks to prevent future wars. "It seeks to settle international disputes by peaceful means and in conformity with principles of justice."

"It seeks to achieve universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all men and women—without distinction as to race, language or religion."

"It seeks to remove the economic and social causes of international conflict and unrest. . . .

"I urge ratification. I urge prompt ratification."

The president traveled a familiar path in his appearance in the Senate—this time as ambassador for the nations that want freedom from war.

The president chose to deliver personally the treaty of San Francisco, the pact of 50 United Nations to outlaw war.

The Senate, eager to act on the treaty, dropped all other duties to accept the document from the chief executive at 1 P. M. (EWT) and to hear his talk in behalf of prompt ratification.

Mr. Truman returned to Washington yesterday from a 5500-mile eight day aerial trip to the west coast. His departure for Berlin and his first meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin is imminent.

The treaty arrives in the Senate under the best possible auspices. More than two-thirds of the senators already have lined up in its favor. And not one has come out against it.

Under the Constitution this nation cannot participate in such a treaty unless two thirds of the senators in attendance approve.

Mr. Truman shrewdly arranged to put the spotlight on the charter rather than upon himself. He asked that there be no radio broadcast and that there be no photographing of the delivery.

Veteran raiders said "the best fire concentration" they've ever seen lighted Ube, Japan's greatest magnesium producing center. The entire waterfront was aflame, with a strong wind fanning the fire.

The Japanese government today moved to improve its damaged raid and water transportation systems in the face of continued air attacks, the impending invasion of the mainland and the announced program of shifting its industries to Manchuria.

Quoting Domei News Agency, Radio Tokyo said the government had ordered a new mobilization of members of the people's volunteer corps to load and unload freight.

They will be charged with "augmenting the efficiency of railways for the speediest possible movement of munitions, foodstuffs, coal and other vital strategic goods."

"Emergency arrangements" were taken to construct "more strategic" vessels and for the expansion of facilities for building and repairing wooden steamers and engine-equipped sailing vessels.

Returning airmen said the entire Ube waterfront was aflame. Clouds obscured results in other areas, but Tokyo said great fires raged from five to seven hours in Kure, Shimonoseki and the neighboring industrial city of Moji. Some damage to Kure naval facilities was conceded.

Allied commanders announced smaller bombers and fighters sank seven Japanese ships, damaged 19, raked four homeland air bases, crippled the Mako Naval Base off the China Coast, and blew up an oil refinery on Formosa.

Chinese troops reported they had penetrated Indo-China, capturing two towns.

Conquest of Okinawa was described by Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, new commander of the U. S. Tenth Army, as further proof "that the Jap has no chance against the American."

Aside from mopping up operations, three American armies—the Sixth, Eighth and Tenth—have been freed for further conquests by the official end of the Okinawan and Philippines campaigns. Japanese have lost 16,000 men on Okinawa since that campaign formally ended—and it goes on for months.

The typhoon season, just beginning, would hamper any major Allied operation in the west Pacific during the next three months. By that time Allied forces should begin arriving at Pacific staging bases in strength from the European theater.

The navy announced the submarine Kete was lost with her complement of about 80 men, 11 months after she was commissioned.

for the Seventh Australian Division. Air forces rained 3,500 tons of explosives on the area in a month, minesweepers spent 15 days clearing a channel, and swimmers worked six days clearing underwater obstacles.

The landing was immediately north of Balikpapan, greatest oil center in the Dutch East Indies. Tokyo said another landing was made 31 miles farther north.

Another unconfirmed enemy report said "about 100 American-directed Chinese junks" unsuccessfully attempted to invade the East China port of Amoy last Wednesday.

Japanese admitted roaring fires were started by today's B-29 fire raid. Waves of Superforts, which Tokyo said were over Japan for five hours, rained 4,000 tons of incendiaries on:

Kure, largest naval base and shipyard on the inland sea; Ube, major coal center and Nippon's greatest magnesium producing center; Shimonoseki, rail bottleneck at the western entrance to the inland sea; and Kumamoto, industrial city on western Kyushu Island.

(Two B-29s were lost in the raid but 20 crew members of the planes were rescued, 20th Air Force Headquarters reported in Washington. The Superfortresses normally carry crews of 11 each.)

It was the greatest fire strike ever made. Bomber crews returning from the early morning raid said some fires were visible 120 miles away. Formations hitting three industrial cities on southern Honshu, main island of Japan, could see the glow from flaming cities raided by other flights.

Officially results were "good to excellent." Jubilant airmen described the raid on Kure naval base as "wonderful."

Veteran raiders said "the best fire concentration" they've ever seen lighted Ube, Japan's greatest magnesium producing center. The entire waterfront was aflame, with a strong wind fanning the fire.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

General MacArthur's grand new victory in Borneo—this time in the amphibious invasion at the great oil port of Balikpapan on the east coast—is a double triumph.

As the general himself points out, by securing domination of Borneo the Allies have split the East Indies and virtually have completed their tactical control of the southwest Pacific. That is a notable achievement, but it's far from the whole story.

The oil wells of Borneo produce large quantities of petroleum so pure it can be used for fuel, lubrication and Diesel power without refining. The conquest of Borneo thus will give us a badly needed oil base right in the heart of the operations against Japan. Hereafter our oil has had to be transported either from the west coast of America clear across the Pacific, or from the Persian Gulf over the long haul through the Indian Ocean. These operations have required a vast amount of time and huge quantities of shipping.

So McArthur has broached a keg of oil which will grease the skids for Nipon.

Borneo had, of course, been Japan's principal source of oil until our blockade severed her communications with Indonesia. Since then she has been largely dependent on her reserves. The petroleum of Borneo, Sumatra and Java for some time has been to them worthless.

We salute our Australian Allies in this Borneo show. It was Seventh Division Aussies who surged ashore at Balikpapan, just as it was "Diggers" who made the landings at Tarakan, on the northeast coast of Borneo, May 1, and at Brunei Bay, on the northwest coast, June 10.

Balikpapan was heavily defended, but the most intensive pre-invasion bombardment ever made in the southwest Pacific softened up the Jap resistance so that Allied casualties thus far reported have been light. The Aussies were put ashore by an Allied fleet of more than 300 ships—American, Royal Australian and Royal Netherlands.

Borneo is the world's third largest island—next to Greenland and New Guinea—and is about one-tenth the size of Australia. Strategically it lies as the central point of a square whose sides are Indo-China, Sumatra and Java, the Celebes and the Philippines. This explains the significance of MacArthur's statement that "our shipping can now sail with land-based air cover to any point in the southwest Pacific."

This huge equatorial island as vast mineral resources but it is largely undeveloped. That is due in considerable degree to the fact that the country is mountainous covered with jungle, and it is impossible hot and humid.

Balikpapan is the most important port on the east coast and is the center of the Borneo oil industry.

Borneo is packed with strange animals—the Mouse deer which is about a foot high, honey bears, elephants, flying foxes and flying frogs. Less strange but more fearsome are the twenty foot pythons, orangutans, crocodiles and what not.

Brunei Town where the Aussies are fighting is one of the worlds odd settlements. Its population of 12,000 live in huts built on poles over mud flats which run out from the Brunei River. They say there are women living there who never have set foot on dry land.

workers and some "related to matters which were in prior contracts but when we attempted to clarify them to avoid grievances the company refused to permit such clarification."

The employees also voted against submission of the disputed points to the WLB, Watson said.

"They have come to appreciate the fact," he declared, "that a powerful company such as Firestone can prostitute the procedures and policies of that board to its own ends."

Negotiations at Firestone, where a company-union contract expired Friday, have been practically continuous since a National Labor Relations Board election two weeks ago in which the workers voted for a strike.

Company officials had no comment.

L. S. Buckmaster, international vice president of the URW, led a determined but losing fight to prolong negotiations.

The Goodyear strikers faced erasure of directives granting the union rights as maintenance of membership and checkoff, shift premiums and vacations, for the national WLB in Washington warned it would consider a proposal for such action today if the strike were not ended.

Draft officials, acting on a mandate by William H. Davis, economic stabilization director, cancelled occupational deferments for registrants participating in the walkout.

HYER HONORED BY EAGLES AT STATE MEETING

He Goes Out of Office as State President of Lodge Saturday

W. B. "Doc" Hyer received one of the greatest ovations ever accorded an outgoing state president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles during the state officers' meeting Saturday at the Neil House in Columbus.

During his year as head of Eagledom in Ohio, 50,000 new members were added—510 of them in the Fayette Aerie. Officials credited this record to the tremendous amount of good will created by Hyer during his visits to aeries all over the state. Harold Snell of Youngstown succeeds him as president.

The 510 new members added to the Fayette Aerie topped the group's last year's high of 506 members. At the same time, the Aerie has brought its War Bond holdings up to $20,000 besides urging the purchase of bonds by the individual Eagles.

M. L. Brown, managing organizer of the Eagles, paid high tribute to Hyer for his unselfish devotion to the cause of Eagledom and its charitable administrations and predicted greater things to come for the Washington C. H. man.

Glenn B. Rodgers, also a member of the Fayette Aerie, was named a district director at the same meeting. He replaces Ray Ballenger of London.

Wheeler telegraphed United States Senator Thomas Connally and Congressman Howard Smith, co-authors of the labor disputes law under which employees of both Firestone and Goodyear voted for strike action, that the strike was "in effect, a lockout."

Earlier Wheeler wired President Truman charging the government agencies with using "un-American and undemocratic tactics" in attempting to draft the strikers.

The strike followed a breakdown of company-union negotiations on 32 wage, hour, overtime and working condition issues. It was preceded by a NLRB election May 28 in which the employees voted overwhelmingly for such action.

BIBLE QUESTIONS ANSWERED BY THE VOICE OF PROPHECY INTERNATIONAL BIBLE BROADCASTER Question—Did Christ's incarnation annul His divinity?

Answer—"And without controversy great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory." 1 Timothy 3:16.

Q.—Do you understand the pre-existence of Christ before He was born in Bethlehem?

A.—No; but I believe it, because of such Bible passages as John 17: 5: "And now, O Father, glorify Thou Me with Thine own self with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was."

Q.—Is it true that in the Bible "days" sometimes stand for "years"?

A.—Yes. In Ezekiel 4:6 it is written, "I have appointed thee each day for a year." This use of days to represent years is found in the symbolic prophecies of the Bible.

Q.—How could people be saved a thousand years before Christ's time when they did not have the gospel?

A.—In Galatians 3:8 we read: "And the scripture, foreseeing that God could justify the heathen through faith, preached the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed." According to the chronology in most Bibles, Abraham lived over 1800 years before Christ was born.

Q.—Since there was no law before it was given on Mount Sinai, how could God hold people guilty of sin?

A.—According to the words of the apostle Paul in Romans 4:15, "where no law is, there is no transgression." But sin was imputed before the written law was given on Mount Sinai (Genesis 4:7; 13: 13; 18:20; Numbers 16:38), which proves the existence of law at that time.

Q.—Didn't Christ say that the generation living in His day would not pass away before all His predictions would be fulfilled?

A.—The reference is doubtless to Matthew 24:34: "Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled." Is it not the generation that sees the signs mentioned in the preceding verses? After recounting these signs in order, the Saviour says: "So likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors." Verse 33.

Covenant and Charter
Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, prime minister of the Union of South Africa and a delegate to the San Francisco Conference, is definitely pleased with the completed world charter. A veteran of the conference which drafted the League of Nations Covenant after the last war, he has expressed his views in a signed newspaper article which is of interest to everyone.

Marshal Smuts feels that the trouble with the old League was that it was based upon an unrealistic idealism which thought pacific settlement of disputes would always be possible, and regarded force as unnecessary. As a result, it had no power to enforce peace when discussion failed. The writers of the present Charter, on the other hand, have learned that it is often necessary to use force to maintain peace, and have provided for such use in case of need.

Another weakness of the old League, he thinks, was the way in which it frowned upon smaller defense groups within itself. This time, there is a provision for the encouragement of such local groups, to help preserve peace within their area boundaries when that is necessary.

With these, and the insistence upon great power leadership and unity as expressed in the voting agreements, Marshal Smuts is sure that the new United Nations organization may well succeed where the League failed.

Certainly it must be given every chance to do so.

Price of Independence

The average youngster usually thinks of independence and irresponsibility as one and the same thing. He dreams of being a vagabond with no home chores to do and no music lessons to practice. That, he feels, would be freedom.

Not so, reasons the famous novelist, C. S. Forester, who shows his hero, Commodore Hornblower, thinking, "Irresponsibility was something which, in the very nature of things, could not co-exist with independence."

The commodore, portrayed as a great victor over the forces of Napoleon, has figured out that he can't have his cake and eat it, too. If he wants to be commander of a squadron, and enjoy the independence of action that goes with power, then he will have to go on accepting the responsibilities which accompany his freedom.

Reading adventures as fascinating as those of Hornblower is one way in which imaginative youngsters gain a bit of wisdom along with entertainment.

Only the Free Eat Well

"Some of our more advanced thinkers," says one prominent publication, "have had the effrontery to put into so many words a statement to the effect that 'freedom is all right but you can't eat it.'"
"Well, perhaps you can't eat freedom. But note one thing. People who do not have freedom are not as likely to eat."

Hints on Etiquette
If a woman wishes to see that some service men have a good time at her favorite restaurant, she can arrange matters with the restaurant ahead of time so that she pays the bill then, or that the bill is given her when she excuses herself from the table for a short time, so that the check is not presented at the table.

3. The Baltic-White Sea Canal, 152 miles long.
Proof of the latter statement becomes more evident in the United States each day. Due to wartime restrictions, the people of our country have given up many of their freedoms, a principal one being the right to produce and sell.
We have accepted wartime rationing and price control as essential to the distribution of existing supplies. But as we have given up our freedom to produce, supplies have dwindled until the United States today faces acute shortages of the essentials of life. All the alibis that are offered in the name of "anti-inflation," will not supply the nation's needs when freedom to produce and sell is gone.

Small Town Future
Overcrowded cities are not particularly attractive to the discharged soldier. He may spend weeks or even months finding a decent place for his family to live. Everywhere he goes are crowds and a kind of confusion he may wish to avoid. Streetcars are packed. Restaurants and theaters have long lines. Grocery shopping is no fun.
But back in the small towns where those crowds came from there is still room to breathe. Such towns are underpopulated now. Their expansion will come as the war production of the big cities slackens and the workers trickle back to their earlier homes.
Servicemen ready for a fresh start as civilians might do worse than to pick a pleasant small city or town where they can get in on the ground floor, either with their own small businesses or as members of established firms due for growth.

People moving to a new neighborhood have often found the meat, cigarettes and so on, reserved for the old customers. Evidently prospective tenants should first make sure that admission to the butcher's good graces goes with the house.

Ways of Treating Asthmatic Seizures

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
ASTHMA is one of those chronic or long-continued disorders for which no cure has as yet been found. It is a most troublesome disease and may even be directly responsible for fatalities.
The outstanding symptom of this disease is shortness of breath, scientifically called dyspnea. During an attack of asthma, there is wheezing, coughing and sometimes slight fever.
Cases Studied
In almost 150 case histories of asthma patients studied by Doctor Emanuel Schwartz of Brooklyn, wheezing and shortness of breath were the outstanding symptoms. Cough was next in importance and was not absent in any of the patients. As the attacks continued, the cough became worse. The patients found it difficult to bring up sputum. As the attack subsided the cough became looser and expectoration less difficult.
Even after the wheezing and shortness of breath stopped the cough continued for several days. In almost one-sixth of the patients running of the nose and sneezing preceded the onset of the asthmatic attack. In these instances the patients were suffering from nasal allergy or oversensitivity.
Cause Unknown
The exact cause of asthma is not definitely known. It is true that many of the patients with this disorder are oversensitive to various substances, such as pollens from plants or dusts, with which they come in contact. Others are sensitive to foods or the poisons formed by germs.
It is as a rule not difficult to make a diagnosis of asthma. The symptoms are so outstanding that it is difficult to confuse it with other conditions. In asthma it is found that the kind of white cells in the blood known as eosinophils are increased in number from 1 per cent. to as high as 5 per cent. to 10 per cent. or more.
Sensitivity Treatment
In the type of asthma due to sensitivity, treatment is usually more satisfactory than in those cases in which no such sensitivity can be found. At best the treatment at the present time consists in the main of those measures which may serve to ward off attacks or relieve them when they occur.
To determine whether or not the

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO
THE HOUSEHOLD had risen early. From the breakfast table Jim and Terry had taken stationery and gone out on the shady terrace to write letters. They had scarcely begun when Brooks came out, a sheaf of morning papers under his arm. He dropped into a chair and started to read. A few moments later he glanced up as he heard Sandy's heavy riding boots come up the flagstone walk. Sandy looked hot and tired, his forehead was damp, his wide-brimmed hat pushed back on his head.
"Been out checking fences in Section 49," he said. "I've never seen the tucura so bad."
Brooks looked worried. "That's just west of that section of wheat. Right in the path of the wind."
Sandy nodded.
"If they'd only held off another ten days," he said, "till after harvest. But they're hatching fast in this heat."
"Might as well get ready for them," Brooks said.
"I've started. I just sent Juanito down to the gasoline storage to check the tanks. I'll take a thousand litros to burn them out of the ditches."
"How are we fixed on galvanized sheets?"
"We won't have nearly enough to cross the field. I'm sending one of the boys into town with the truck to pick up more. I've got 25 men down there now digging the ditches."
Brooks threw his paper to the ground.
"Come on, I'll go with you," he said. "We'll ride out and see how they're coming."
After the men had gone Terry turned to Jim. "What is tucura?"
Jim laid aside her pen and leaned back in her chair.
"Tucura, dear, is the most feared scourge of the pampas," she began. "They're a kind of grasshopper that breed in the soil. During warm summer days they grow rapidly. When they're full grown they sweep over the fields in a cloud, eating every green thing in sight. I've seen them destroy hectares of wheat in a single day."
Terry was interested.
"What can they do to fight them?"
"They take galvanized sheets of metal and fasten them together, making a barrier across the field. In front of the barrier they dig a trench. When the tucura come they

VETERANS' GUIDE
BY MAJOR THOMAS M. NIAL

WASHINGTON — A group of Altoona, Pa., citizens knew that there were lots of jobs available, but returning ex-service men didn't seem to think so. The citizens decided to investigate and learned that scattered jobs didn't necessarily mean that veterans could find them easily.
The business men, professional men, teachers and so on of this city in Pennsylvania got tired of being dragged around by the bull. So they managed to ease around to the front part and get hold of the horns. They formed a committee of 50. The whole bunch took a course in counseling given by instructors from Penn State University. They got organized and went to work counseling ex-service men returning to Altoona and getting the right kind of job for them. They divided into shifts and would talk with any veteran who wanted to talk, and that's the way they found they could really help a veteran.
The plan is now known as the Altoona plan. I'm told some other cities are following the scheme or a similar one. I hope so. There should be no simpler way to handle employment for the returning vet than by local help. That has been recognized by the American Legion in its veterans' employment program. This is different from the Legion's program for maximum employment I mentioned in my last article.
The Legion says employment of everyone must be the goal. "But we must find, first of all," the Legion goes on, "employment for our best hands, our best brains—our returning veterans. These veterans are America's most alert, best-trained men. The term selective service was no accident. Only the fittest survived that rigorous screening."
"These are the veterans, the cream of America's human resources. They are the men we must employ first—not because of duty, not out of sentiment—but because we cannot do without their courage, skill and initiative."
Makes you feel kind of good to read that. And it doesn't seem to be just talk, since the American Legion follows it with a carefully arranged plan, and has set out to get the plan into effect.
Apparently many of our larger business and professional groups have either made some plans or are planning to make some plans

Merritt - Armbrust Vows Exchanged at Bride's Home Saturday Afternoon, June 30

Members of Family and Intimate Friends Witness Ceremony, Performed by Rev. W. H. Wilson as Hands of Clock Neared 4

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Merritt on the Hoppes Road was the scene of a quiet and beautiful wedding ceremony Saturday afternoon, at three-thirty, when their daughter, Lorie, became the bride of Flight Officer Norman A. Armbrust, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Armbrust, of the Lewis Road.

A seven branch candelabrum and two large standards of gladioli and fern placed before a large window formed a perfect setting for the single ring ceremony, which was read by Rev. W. H. Wilson, pastor emeritus of the First Baptist Church.

The pretty young bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length dress of blue-grey mesh with oval neckline and white accessories. Her flowers were a corsage of pink rose buds. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Clara Belle Robinson, maid of honor, wore a grey dress, smartly trimmed with white embroidery, and white accessories. Her flowers were a corsage of pink rose buds.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Marion Burr.

For her daughter's marriage, Mrs. Merritt chose a black dress, trimmed in black lace, with which she wore a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Armbrust wore an aqua crepe afternoon dress and her flowers were a corsage of red roses.

A reception was held for members of the immediate families and a few intimate friends immediately following the ceremony.

The dining room table, covered with a lovely lace cloth, was centered with a two tiered wedding cake, flanked with double crystal candelabra. A beautiful bouquet of white carnations and gladioli was placed on the mantle.

Miss Rebecca Jane Armbrust, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Sue Belles, cousin of the bride, assisted in the dining room.

For going-away the bride chose a suit of brown gabardine with which she wore white accessories.

After a short wedding trip, the new F. O. and Mrs. Armbrust will return to the home of Mrs. Armbrust's parents where they will remain until the first of August when F. O. Armbrust reports to Miami Beach, Florida, for reassignment.

Mrs. Armbrust was graduated from Washington High School with the class of 1940. She attended Wilmington College and Office Training School in Columbus. For the past year she has been instructor of commercial subjects at the Madison Mills High School and music instructor at the Good Hope High School.

F. O. Armbrust graduated from Washington High School with the class of 1937. He has been in the armed forces for the past four years where he was pilot of a B-17. For the past twenty-three months F. O. Armbrust has been a prisoner of war in Germany, and he returned to this country two weeks ago.

Now that Civilian Goods are being made, can I get a Telephone?

You've read a lot about reconversion since V-E Day and perhaps you've wondered how victory over Germany affects your chances of getting telephone service?

Briefly this is the present picture:

1. Limited quantities of telephone equipment are being produced by our peacetime supplier, the Western Electric Company, but only in a volume sufficient to provide service to a small number of the 90,000 families on our waiting list. In fact, the list is growing longer because of the heavy demand for new service. The bulk of Western's facilities still must be devoted to manufacture of vital communications equipment for war in the Pacific. As soon as war needs decrease, releasing manufacturing facilities, production of telephone equipment for civilian use will be stepped up as rapidly as possible.
2. Fair and necessary government regulations of wartime telephone installations still are in effect to guarantee essential service for war production and for urgent reasons of personal and public health and safety.
3. Improvements in existing service, such as regading to better types of service and installation of extension telephones, must wait until more equipment is produced. All available facilities are being used to serve families now without any service.
4. Plans are ready for expansion and improvement of our entire plant to furnish fast, dependable service to everyone who wants it. This program will be pushed forward as rapidly as reduction of war needs permits.

Death Stench

Still Clings To Budapest
But Sidewalk Orchestras Play Amid Rubble That Holds 4500 Bodies

The following account of conditions in Budapest is the first dispatch by an American correspondent from the Hungarian capital since America's entry into World War Two. A. I. Goldberg, who covered most of the European campaign with the United States Seventh Army, visited Budapest in the course of a deep journey that also took in Prague, Vienna and Bratislava.

By A. I. GOLDBERG
BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 20.—(Delayed)—(P)—The stench of death still hovers over Budapest, but at night orchestras play at sidewalk cafes amid the rubble of the Hungarian capital.

An estimated 4,500 bodies still lie in the ruins of Buda on the west side of the Danube. Residents labor through long daylight hours to clear wreckage left by the bombings and siege.

At night customers thread their way through the rubble to cafes where they talk until the midnight curfew.

Howard Byrne, correspondent for the army newspaper Stars and Stripes, and I were hailed as the first Allied correspondents to visit Budapest in years.

The city is under rigid Allied occupation control, and is dominated by Marshal K. Y. Voroshilov's Soviet forces. He is senior Allied officer and his troops are the actual occupying force for the city that once boasted a population of 1,500,000, but which has dwindled to around 800,000.

There is talk in the cafes that elections for the Hungarian parliament will be held in September as the first step in the establishment of a five-man council to rule the country. Former Premier Count Julius Karolyi may be one of the council members.

Of Budapest's famed luxury hotels only the Britannia still stands. It is used as a billet for Russian officers. The Luxor, Bristol, Carlton, Hungaria and St. Gellter's are granite shells.

The Budapest Opera House is intact, and there are nearly 60 movie houses open.

Elizabeth's Bridge has lost its center span, but Russian army engineers built a temporary span.

Many street cars are running, and there is running water in some buildings. There are railroad lines running through the city.

Felled bridges are still lying in the Danube, and German floating mines still prevent traffic on that waterway.

The city is in ruins all along the Danube water front, especially on the Buda side.

Acting representative for the Americans on the Allied Control Commission is Col. Dallas Townsend of Montclair, N. J., and New York City.

The food situation for all of Hungary is serious. Only 25 percent of the normal grain crop was planted this spring. There are few vehicles and other equipment for the work of harvesting.

W. C. PERRILL DIES SUDDENLY EARLY SUNDAY

Popular Young Business Man Was Manager of Thrift 'E' Market

Wallace C. Perrill, 44, one of the city's best known young business men, who had been manager of the Thrift-E Market the past year, died suddenly of a heart attack at his home, 912 Briar Avenue, Sunday at 5:30 A. M.

Mr. Perrill had worked late Saturday night at the store. Although he had been ill earlier last week, his condition was not regarded as serious.

He was a son of former County Commissioner and Mrs. Louis Perrill, of the Parrett Station community. He was a graduate of Jeffersonville High School and Bliss Business College at Columbus.

He resided in Jeffersonville for a number of years while holding the position of traveling salesman for the Midland Grocery Co. and the Central Grocery Co.

A year ago he took over management of the Thrift-E Market on West Court Street, and had managed it very successfully.

Mr. Perrill was a man of many admirable traits of character and he leaves an unusually large circle of friends in the community and also in the territory covered while employed as a traveling salesman.

He is survived by his widow, two sons: Lt. Louis B. Perrill, Ft. Lewis, Washington; Pfc. Howard S. Perrill, Camp Ladune, N. C., and two grandchildren.

He was a member of Grace Methodist Church, The Lions' Club, Knights of Pythias Lodge at Jeffersonville and the Eagles Lodge in Washington C. H.

Funeral plans have not been made, pending word from his two sons in the armed forces.

The Kiever Funeral Home is in charge of funeral arrangements.

$166,862 LEFT OF BOND QUOTA TO BE BOUGHT

Drive Ends Saturday; Over-all Goal Is Exceeded; Individuals Behind

Fayette County stood $166,862.50 from its $749,000 Seventh War Loan individual quota as the end of the drive looms only six days away.

Despite the fact that the individual quota still is far from met, the county is above its grand total quota of $858,000. To date, federal reserve reports show $948,079 worth of bonds sold in the county.

War Finance committeemen are urging workers to make a last minute effort to sell a few more E bonds so that the individual quota can be met by the time the drive ends Saturday.

INCH RAINFALL SUNDAY NIGHT

Mercury Reaches 90 During Sunday Afternoon

An inch of rain fell over this community between midnight Sunday and 8 A. M. Monday, most of the water falling within a comparatively short time and flooding many catchbasins until the water stood over the streets.

Farm lands in much of the county were flooded once more as July was ushered in with one of the heaviest rains of the season.

Sunday's temperature ranged from 65 degrees to 90, and at 8 A. M. Monday the reading was 60 degrees.

STATE GUARD COMPANY GOES TO CAMP LIGHT

Will Leave for Camp Perry Thursday and Return Next Sunday

Company D, Ohio State Guard, left early Sunday morning for Camp Light, at Zaleski, Vinton County, to join other units of the Guard for field training until Thursday morning, when they leave for Camp Perry to remain until Sunday morning, when they are scheduled to return here.

The company in charge of First Lieut. Arthur Matson, in the absence of Captain Virgil Sexton, who left Wednesday to attend officers school at the camp, departed shortly before 7 A. M., making the trip in the two scout cars owned by the company and a half dozen transport trucks.

It was regarded as significant that the company was ordered to take emergency ammunition and tear gas, and rumors were afloat that much of the guard outfit might be called on strike duty at Akron or elsewhere before the week's camp is ended.

En route to Camp Perry the company and other companies of the Guard who are training at Camp Light this week, will bivouac at Fremont, Thursday night, and go on to Camp Perry Friday morning.

The company had some 50 men who went for the week's training.

Friends predict a very successful tenure in the office.

George Blessing, the outgoing postmaster, who held the position for eight or 10 years, leaves a good record in conducting the affairs of the office.
